

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE WILL BE HELD IN GALVESTON WEDNESDAY

War Industries Department of Associated Industries of Texas
Expects Large Attendance of Business Men at Sessions

An industrial meeting different in style to any that have ever been held in Texas will be held which will meet Wednesday morning in the convention hall of the Hotel Galvez at Galveston, where the industries of the entire southwest are represented by the 13th Industrial Region, will come together under the auspices of the War Industries department of the Associated Industries of Texas, to discuss the government's idea of improving the environment of their plants from a general to a specific basis.

Speaking of this meeting, Leon Ladd, of Dallas, Director, Associate of the War Industries Board, has now permission of Texas and parts of Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico, says: "Every industrial executive realizes that with the increasing shortage in supplies and labor, it must be an efficient operation to my mind the best method of preparation for such work will be for him to attend the Galveston meeting. The government has no desire to beat down the industrial executive, rather it is inclined to assist him in every possible way, and it has spent much time and money in working out plans for an absolute improvement of all industries from a normal to a war-time basis. The Galveston meeting, the 13th, today, is going to have an opportunity not only to discuss the problems which are making difficult their operations, but to work out among themselves a plan of co-operation which will enable them to hold up government specifications and requirements which would otherwise be of great size for individual plants to handle. We are looking for a large attendance of these forward-thinking individuals from new men and the executives who fail to attend or at least have a responsible representative present, will certainly be overlooking an opportunity to materially improve the present industrial situation."

An Industrial Council

The Galveston meeting over which Judge George W. Armstrong of Fort Worth presides, the Associated Industries of Texas formerly known as the D. M. A. in Texas Association will provide a meeting of industries which have failed with the War Industries Committee, a part of these facilities for handling War Work in the recent survey which has been conducted through the War Industries Department of the Associated Industries of Texas. The meeting will be in the nature of an industrial council, it being planned that the greater part of the sessions shall be given over to discussion of the many problems which are involved in the changing over to the plants represented. Many manufacturers have expressed a desire to turn over their entire plants to the government on a non-profit basis, believing it better to keep the plants running for the period of the war than to shut down and lose a great part of the money invested through depreciation, in some sections of the state such a working agreement has been reached.

Secretary of Labor to Speak.
One of the few addresses to be delivered during the course of the meeting will be that of Louis P. Stimson, Assistant Secretary of Labor, who comes from Washington with a message direct from the U. S. Employment Service to the industrial executives. The activities of this service, the author of the survey, will be included in a later report for which he is already here, served under the War Industries department of the Associated Industries of Texas.

GOVERNMENT WAR FILM "AMERICA'S ANSWER" TO BE RELEASED SHORTLY

SOUTHWESTERN STATES ARE URGED TO ENROLL 1430 TRAINED NURSES

Dennis J. Sullivan, manager of Domestic Distribution for War Pictures of the Division of Public Information, makes an announcement that is of the utmost interest to the public throughout the United States.

"America's Answer," the second of the "Following the Flag to France" series, will be ready for distribution to the picture houses early in October, and it is to be expected, it is officially announced, under conditions that will permit the public to see this important war film at regular motion picture theater prices, and at the same time give the exhibitors a fair profit without raising the admission fees. Only theatre seats and at the same time prices will be given for privilege of viewing the government's feature film.

One thing must be constantly borne in mind by all concerned, says Mr. Sullivan. The government pictures are not meant to make money-making proposition. It is of course necessary that they should measure at least sufficient material to meet the heavy expenses entailed in their production. The real purpose of the war film is to stir up interest in the war and by showing what is being accomplished by our armies on the other side to stimulate war enthusiasm and a genuine patriotic interest in all the government's war activities. The account of our own war will necessarily be given to serve the largest possible public for the pictures, but one of the possibilities of the war film is to stir up growing interest of amateur exchanges. The aim of the government's picture is to educate each nation to raise their voices during the showing of the official war films above their regular and commercial interests. Naturally, if the exhibitor is compelled to pay a high price for the picture, he is going to pass it on to the public. And this just what the Division of Pictures wants to prevent.

It is proposed that America's Answer should have preliminary distribution in the motion picture houses of the United States, and soon after the news of the picture will form the basis on which the government will negotiate to give an equitable fee to make a profit, and at the same time to make the pictures available to the public.

Plans not regarding before the beginning of the first phase of the survey will be included in a later report for which he is already here, served under the War Industries department of the Associated Industries of Texas.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 14.—The Southwestern American Red Cross Division, which includes Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, will enroll 1,430 trained nurses before January 1, 1919, or fail to fit the quota. Nurses applied to health officials in the Red Cross today now. The division has been asked to supply 2,250 trained nurses for military hospitals here and abroad, and to have 3,000 supplies still.

Of the thirteen Red Cross Divisions of the United States, the Southwestern stands tenth in the per cent of nurses supplied to the government. The Pacific Division, composed of California, Nevada and Alaska, leads the 13, with a percentage of 74 per cent. Out of 1,430 nurses sought to date, 1,143 have signed up. The Atlantic Division, however, leads in the number of nurses enlisted. The figures show that about 5,000 of the 13,000 division has reported 2,250 nurses. The Atlantic Division is composed of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, New England, and the District of Columbia.

All Red Cross workers in the Southwest Division have advised to make personal appeals to friends and efforts to save them from inaction. Many nurses employed in civilian hospitals have volunteered to assist nurses who have failed to take the places. In this way, the women of high social standing have been asked to assist.
